If you answer mostly:

A's: you should definitely consider a Destination Wedding! You are adventurous, love to travel and are laid back. Planning a wedding from a distance doesn't stress you. Your family and friends are on board and happy to go along with your travel plans! A traditional local wedding is not too exciting for you. You want to do it your way and are okay with a smaller number of guests attending. Plus, you would love to tie the knot in paradise and take a mini honeymoon at the same time!

B's: Your heart prefers a traditional wedding. You love the idea of having it done at home with all your extended family and friends attending your big day. Your wedding budget is significantly higher and you don't want to figure out travel details with your guests. Both of you feel more at ease connecting with local vendors and doing in-person site visits - you would rather be much more involved in the planning process.
